COM.

The fore part of the week, John Thumb appropriated a load of wood owned by Fred Dupslaff left standing near E. King's barn. When taken before Justice Forsythe he decided to settle.

Moorman does not intend to let other enterprising citizens get the start of him. He is tearing down the front of his block on Huron street, corner of Congress. and intends to put in one up to the times.

The next term of the Michigan Military Academy opens Sept. 15th. The attendance promises to be much larger than last year. For information address Col. J. S. Rogers, Supt., Orchard Lake, Michigan.

A large crowd gathered on the streets Monday night to see a tight rope performance. It was a good one; but how many of the admiring crowd would have attended a free lecture on some instructive subject?

Shemeld is minus a good handful of whiskers, but he is ready for the next man. John Kinney thought he could handle the "little constable" last Tuesday. His sentence was $20, or three months. He has not paid the fine.

Tim Tures, of Jackson, and Sam Johnson are to run a foot race on the fair ground, next Thursday. In the evening the Knight Templar's band give a party and dance at their rooms, over Homer Cady's grocery store.

Prof. McLouth and others, interested in the study of astronomy, were making good use of the telescope last Friday evening. What the Normal now needs is a good observatory. A separate building with a good foundation is what is intended.

Geo. Hopkins and one Jenkins, both colored, tried to break up a dance, being held at the rooms of the Knight Templars' band, last Tuesday night. They roused the neighborhood. Hopkins' trial is pending and officers are looking for Jenkins.

M. T. Hunter, of Detroit, for many years a sea captain, passed through here Thursday evening, with a steam yacht, which he had sold to Hangsterfer at Ann Arbor. It was a beauty; good for eight miles an hour. It was twenty-eight feet long. The boiler was three-horse power and has been tested at a pressure of 48,000 lbs. to the square inch. We wish it would stop here. It is named the "Mulford S. Hunter."

A picnic for the benefit of the Sunday school, superintended by Mr. Canfield, on the gravel road, was held on Mr. Canfield's lawn, the afternoon of the 6th instant. It was estimated that 300 persons were gathered under the shade of the venerable locust trees. After singing and music, appropriate speeches were made by Revs. Mr. Scott and Washburn, after which an ample collection of the good things, followed by ice cream. Having feasted the parting song was given by a choir of beautiful singers, Remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Richmond who closed by proposing three cheers for Mr. Canfield, which were rendered with a will. COM.

Mr. William Post handed us the following in regard to the life of Chester Rollo, a former resident of this city, and a near and dear friend of Mr. Post, who died in Niles, July 31st, of paralysis. It is taken from the Niles Republican.

Mr. Rollo was born in Cambridge, Washington county, New York. Came to Michigan in the year 1836, settling in Ypsilanti, where he resided until 1857, whon he removed to this piace. Here he has passed the evening of his days, going down to his grave at irst, "in a full age like a shock of corn, coming in his season." His christian integrity and honor were unquestioned. He was that "noblest work of God," an honest man. Following the wife of his youth to the heavenly home, after the short separation of five months, their earthly joys and sorrows forever past, they are home at last—in the safe harbor of eternal blessedness and peace.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW COMMERCIAL OFFICE.

THE NEW COMMERCIAL OFFICE is 22x50 feet, two stories high with an addition one story 10x22 feet, all covered with a tin roof. It is built of brick. On first floor in front, door on Huron St. is the bindery 12x20 feet. Editorial and business room door on Pearl street 8x20 feet. Between these two rooms will be a window petition separating the press and machinery room, brick cement floor. This room is 20x25 feet. In this room will be two Campbell presses, bran new from the Factory, a Newspaper and Job Press and Book and Job Press, and a Peerless Card Press, a Baxter Engine, Paper cutter and a Binders Press. In the rear is the wood and coal room. The entrance to the composing room is on Pearl street. The composing room 20x42 is one of the nicest in the State. In the rear will be a window petition enclosing stair way-landing, wash and stationary rooms. The office is splendidly lighted by capacious windows, above and below, raised and lowered by weights. The floors are of inch and half ash. The exterior and interior presents as was designed by the proprietor, who drew and executed his own plan, a substantial appearance. The object in view a Printing Office and one that shall be occupied as such for a century to come has been kept upermost in building. It is convenient airy, well lighted and ventillated. The interior walls are a hard, white finish. The exterior walls will be pencilled at an early day. While it is not an expensive building and showy,. yet it is one we are not ashamed to show our friends at home or from abroad. Though the office is not completed we are here doing business, and are kept busy. In about a month we hope to show our friends through the completest office in the entire west in a city embracing a population of from 5000 to 6000 inhabitants.

The Union Temperance meeting at the Presbyterian church next Sunday evening, will be addressed by Rev. J. H. Scott.

The Michigan Military Academy at Orchard Lake entered during the last year seventy-nine Cadets, representing ten States. To secure such patronage in three years proves that only thorough work is done there.

Letters remaining in the Post Office, Aug., 12 1880.

J. B. Ford, Z. W. Lowry, Daniel O'Brien, Enoch Skinner, E. Tellus, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams.

If a man has something to sell at a profit to himself he will pay for advertising it. If the same man has an idea that he believes, from the depth of his soul, would, if generally adopted, work great good to himself and others in common, he will graciously let the journals advertise it at their own expense. This is called strict adherence to business, and is one reason why business is held vulgar and journalism respectable.

Do not forget the State Institute for teachers to be held at the Normal next week, a call for which was given in last weeks COMMERCIAL. Arangements have been made for good board cheap. Supt. Gower, Prof. Sill, and Prof. Pease and McLouth will be present. A rich feast is prepared.

A Garfield and Arthur Club of more than one hundred members, was organized Saturday evening last, at Light Guard Hall. A A spirit of earnestness and enthusiasm prevailed. Hon. E. P. Allen was chosen President. F. Hinkley and F. A. Hunt Vice Presidents with John H. Fox Sec., and P. W. Carpenter Cor. Sec., Dr. J. E. Post Treasurer. An efficient executive committee also of nine members.

The Light Guard came to time well, starting for Camp Chandler, Kalamazoo, Monday morning with forty odd men. The band did not accompany them. Three regiments make up the encampment, each regiment numbering about 500 men. So many men together are bound to have a gay time, but the regular routine of drill and camp work soon gets tiresome. The Governor was expected yesterday and preparations had been made for a sham street fight. We have not heard of any of our boys getting into trouble although the citizens are amused by the patrol gathering up the straglers who come to town without passes.

While in Justice Forsythe's office Thursday afternoon, a case was called which indirectly brought in the question of cattle running at large in the town. From the testimony it was evident that the cows from the city which are herded, in droves by boys who allow them to feed along the public high ways,are a great source of annoyance to our neighbor farmers. They are getting a little worked up in regard to the matter. The law requires the path-master in each town to see that the roads are kept clear of cattle, and other stock, he having the privilege of looking up such cattle and selling them if not released by the owner, and he is liable to ten dollars fine if he refuses to carry out the law. Not only are the boys who drive the cows liable to arrest and punishment, but the owners of the cows are liable for the damage done. Good pasture can be obtained in most cases at reasonable rates. If a person is not able to keep a cow any other way than by pasturing on his neighbors, he had better sell her and patronize the milk man. Milk has been selling for three cents a quart. This is a good warning to all who want to keep out of the clutches of the law.

Friday night, July 30th, the house of Owen O'Neal nearly opposite the entrance to the fair ground caught fire between twelve and one and was burned to the ground. Cause of the fire not known. The family consists of nine persons. Mrs. O'Neal and the children were sleeping in the house at the time and barely escaped, one of the little girls being taken out just in time, dressed in her night clothes. But little of the furniture was saved. Mr. O'Neal works in the Peninsular paper mill, till mid-night, and on reaching home found his house nearly consumed. The house was insured in the Home for $500 and contents $800. This will not make good the loss, as all their clothing and most of the furniture was destroyed. O'Neal had recently bought the adjoining house, and the goods saved were moved into this building where the family will remain for the present.

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL PAPER.

The Free Press well says:

There is no way of convincing doubtful voters than by placing in their hands home journals which have the cause of the Democracy at heart. In the interest of a perfect organization, steps should at once be taken in every locality, looking to the circulation of your local paper. It would pay to save the money from ornamental matters, of no sort of account.

The best work will be found to have been done where the local paper has been extensively circulated. This can only be done where the local committee does its duty in pushing its local paper among the people. If local candidates expect to be sustained, it must be through the local press. We do not cast any flings upon or discountenance the use of outside campaign (State) papers. All well enough. But if at the expense of the local paper from which gratuitous notices of conventions and local meetings are expected, it is an outrage.

The Post and Tribune very generously places the local papers at the front, and encourages campaign clubs and committees by "all means to circulate these first, and if means can only be secured to circulate among every voter but one paper, let it be the local paper."

Sixteen years ago the Union club, under the leadership of D. B. Greene, S. M. Cutcheon, and others, circulated 100 copies of the COMMERCIAL, at an expense of $50.00, and it confessedly did good work. Thirty dollars will now circulate 150 copies during the campaign.

Last week we noticed the sale of the Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Railroad by Mr. Alley to a company organized by Gov. Ashley in Toledo. A change of ownership threw out G. W. Smith, W. F. Parker, and Mr. Dolson, who, in addition to their onerous duties in connection with the D., H. & S.-W. R. R., were caring for the Toledo and Ann Arbor. Now they will have more time and will devote their undivided efforts to the D., H. & S.-W. A survey has been made from Bankers to La grange, Indiana. Mr. C. S. Woodard has aided in the survey. The right of way is being secured. At Bankers the D., H. & S.-W. is connected with the Jackson & Fort Wayne; at Lagrange it will connect with the Grand Rapids & Fort Wayne. It will extend the line of the business of the road 43 miles farther, and through one of the most productive regions in the country. The Coldwater people are having the blues, as it forms a side track a few miles south of their city. It strengthens the Hillsdale, giving it a line of 108 miles, and Ypsilanti is greatly benefitted. The probability of the road being pushed through to Chicago is not brilliant; for an independent line to Detroit, very remote, and for a connection with the Butler at Belleville, a good deal more so.

Notice the list of attractions at the opera house the coming season:

The great American actor John McCullough
Mitchel's pleasure party. Our Goblins.
Barney McCauley.
Union Hall.
Ada Cavendish party.
Child of the State Combination.
Power's Company in Dr. Clyde.
Jane Coombs, in Romeo and Juliet.
Fanny Davenport.
John A, Stevens, from Windsor theater, N.Y
Tony Denier, Humpty Dumpty party.
C. L. Graves, Four Seasons.

These parties will appear during the season, in addition to eminent lecturers and other attractions. Our amusement loving people can be entertained at home, and we understand no pains have been spared to produce and exhibit the best talent that visits the west. Sale of seats for John McCullough will soon be announced. Dates of other attractions and local notices in their order.

The reprint of the Edinburgh Review for July has been recently issued by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay Street, New York.

The first article, "The Precursors of Newton," is a sketch of the movement of thought in the seventeenth century which led to such great scientific results, and incidentally of the life of Dr. Robert Hooke, a man whose career was the most conspicuous failure of the century.

Dr. Lindsay's recently published book, "Mind in the Lower Animals in Health and Disease," is the subject of a very attractive article. Dr. Lindsay's theory is that mind is the same thing in the lower animals as it is in man, and numerous instances of the sagacity of animals which he has collected are here quoted; but the reviewer, after a careful examination, declares his arguments to be futile and his conclusions preposterous.

"Naval Power in the Pacific" is an account of Russian strongholds on the Pacific coast and the disadvantages under which other European powers labor in their endeavors to keep a naval force in those waters.

Other articles are "Memoirs of the Prince Consort;" "Sabians and Christian of St. John," who they are and what their religion is; Landlords, Tenants, and Laborers;" "Memoirs of Madame de Remusat;" "Hodgkin's Invaders of Italy," the story of the changes which brought to an end the life of the ancient world, and transferred the sceptre of Imperial Rome to the hands of the Teutonic nations; "Bright's Edition of Pepys's Diary," a long review with many quotations; "The Divorce of Katharine of Aragon;" and "The New Parliament in Session."

The periodicals reprinted by The Leonard Scott Publishing Co. (41 Barclay Street, N. Y.) are as follows: The London Quarterly, Edinburgh, Westminster, and Bridish Quarterly Reviews, and Blackwood's Magazine. Price, $4 a year for any one, or only $15 for all, and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

There will be a State Convention of the Prohibition Reform Party of Michigan, in the City of Jackson, commencing at 1 o'clock P. M., Wednesday, September 1st, 1880. The objects of the Convention will be to nominate candidates for Presidential Electors, and for Officers of the State of Michigan, to be supported at the ensuing election in November next; also to select a State Central Committee, and to transact such other business as the Convention when assembled shall deem best

All citizens of the State of Michigan—regardless of past political party associations—who favor the enactment and enforcement of constitutional and statutory laws entirely prohibiting the traffic in intoxicating liquors, who believe that competency, honesty and sobriety are essential qualifications for holding public offices, and who to secure these inestimable blessings to the State, and the nation, will geve their moral and political support to the Prohibition Reform Party, are invited to unite in electing and securing the attendance of delegates to this Convention. Each County will be entitled to six delegates for every representative it has in the lower branch of the State Legistature, but every County shall be entitled to at least three delegates.

We suggest that the friends of the Prohibition Reform Party hold County Conventions in every County in the State, on some date between the 10th and 20th of August, to select delegates to the State Convention to perfect their organization and prepare for the prompt commencement of the work of the Campaign.

By order of the State Central Committee.

J. W. KERMOT, Secretary. CHAS. P. RUSSELL, Chairman.

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

DR. HOWE'S ARABIAN TONIC,
DR. HOWE'S ARABIAN MILK CURE,
DR. HOWE'S ARABIAN LIVER PILLS.

The only Medicines that have Ever Been Known to Positively Cure Consumtion.

Testimony of Hon. Jos. E. Gary, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.:

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.—DR. S. D. HOWE—Dear Sir: Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtues of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with with a hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired by the skilful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plain and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk-Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the mer it of your remedies. Very respectfully yours, JOSEPH E GARY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States. Price of Milk Cure and Tonic, each $1 per bottle; Pills 25 cents per box.

The above cut does not represent the "House that Jack Built," but shows what some active Yankee genious has brought about to ameliorate the hard lot of the overheated housewife or kitchen maid. It needs but little intelligence to see that it is a Gasoline Stove. To be appreciated it needs to be used but a very few days. For facility of operation, for comfort to the operator, and for light draft on the family exchequer, there is no other stove fit to be named the same day in comparison with it. A few were put into use last season, and created a perfect enthusiasm in the minds and hearts of the women who were fortunate enough to have husbands who were thus mindful of their comfort. We would refer to them here but those gentle ladies might be frightened to see their names in print. We have a full line of the stoves for sale on HURON STREET,

EDITORIAL NOTES.

COMMERCIAL 25 cents to Dec. 1st, 1880.

OMER D. CONGER is nominated in the seventh district, receiving thirty eight of of the fifty votes cast, the first ballot.

A GREAT BANKER'S CONVENTION has been held at Saratoga this week. Secretary Sherman sent a remarkable letter, demonstrating the advantage to the people of the National Banks.

Send a strong delegation to the Republican county convention at Ann Arbor next Tuesday, to nominate county officers.

Nominate the best men, regardless of locality, personal friendship, fear or favor. It meets in the court house at 10 A. M.

The appointment of the new homœopathic professor, Dr. Allen, at the University is censured by the homœopathic doctors in Detroit. The Doctor coolly turns the tables by publishing an indorsement of him not long since by these same parties

COMMERCIAL 25 cents to Dec 1st, 1880.

Capt. Allen acquitted himself handsomely at Jackson, when it is considered that he had to squeeze a Washtenaw man into "a coach" so full of candidates. Mr. Beal has reason to congratulate himself in having such an able advocate; especially in being compelled to wave his "modesty" long enough to find concentered in himself the "combination of all the virtues" in that full coach.

While it would be gratifying to the many friends of J. Webster Childs in this vicinity to send him to Congress, yet as Mr. Willits was their second choice, he will receive an earnest and enthusiastic support. Other things being equal, the longer an able, clear headed, honest man, as Mr. Willits has proved himself to be, can be kept in Congress, the better for the District and country. Hence, the COMMERCIAL endorses the the nomination with a hearty good will.

BEING IN the city we dropped into the Democratic State Convention at the Opera House. The convention was composed of a class of good looking, earnest, men. The impression we obtained from the speeches was that the speakers had no hopes of Democratic success in Michigan, and but a problematical chance for the election of the President. We noticed C. R. Whitman as spokesman of the Washtenaw delegation, and E. F. Uhl, of the Kent Delegation. Brother Sandford of the Lansing Journal had strong supporters, but the convention had a farmer on the brain, and the ballot stood:

Col. Halloway, of Hillsdale	344
Geo. P. Sanford, of Lansing	188
N. B. Eldridge	20
G. V. N. Lothrop	2

C. R. Whitman presented the name of Albert Crane of this city for member the Board of Education. He is Mr. Rexford's competitor

TO OUR PATRONS.

You will please accept our heartfelt thanks for the support you have given us the first six months of the year, an unprecedented number have paid in advance. Our subscription list has as in years past been the largest in Eastern Washtenaw. We thank in a special manner, the old tried and true friends who have stood by the COMMERCIAL the last sixteen years. Our success has been due to this noble phalanx of friends. The ranks have only been broken by death and then the children have stepped into the places of the fathers or been filled by new subscribers. Every dollar we ever earned, aside from supporting in an economical manner our family, has been expended in improvements. We have tried to merit the patronage and good will of our best and noblest, most public spirited citizens. We thank this class for their many kind words and substantial patronage.

We offer you increased facilities. Ypsilanti is never to be a metropolitan centre. But it always will be a flourishing, enterprising town. The past two years indicate this much. It will always have a healthy trade and be a nice town to live in. It has never gone backward. Improvement has been and will be the motto of our citizens. We have built our new office and placed in it facilities with this faith, and don't expect to be disappointed. Say to your friends abroad that Ypsilanti has the nicest Post Office and the nicest Printing Office outside of Detroit in the State. We expect to make the Printing Office and the COMMERCIAL the pride and boast of our citizens.

THE ORGANIZATION MEETING

Saturday evening was a great success. Capt. Allen stated that the Hancock and English club only enrolled 50 names at the first meeting. We have over a hundred. The list of officers is given elsewhere.

Capt. Allen, alluding to the huge Democratic majority in Alabama' near 80,000, and the coming 40,000 Republican majority in Michigan this fall, compared the two civilizations, the majority of the former representing the shot gun and a reign of terror, while in Michigan it represents the church, the Sunday school, our common schools and colleges. In Alabama at least 100,000 Republican voters are driven from the ballot box—virtually disfranchised—while in Michigan every Democrat, no matter how demented or full of whisky, is permitted to cast his ballot.

Mr. Frank Hinkley went for the Democratic Congress last winter, and demonstrated the iniquity of the legislation that would leave the southern voter utterly defenceless and give fraud an ample field.

Mr. Fred Hunt paid a fine eulogy to the Republican party, demonstrating its vitality—smothering rings and cliques in its own fold. He asked his hearers the pertinent question, "for whom will you vote—Hancock, the mere soldier educated at his country's expense, or Garfield, the volunteer soldier and statesman?"

THE CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION

At Adrian, Tuesday, was largely attended. Col. Dean, of the Ann Arbor Register, was chosen Chairman; Andrew Winchester, of Hillsdale, Secretary. Committee on Credentials—Hillsdale, Theron Landon; Lenawee, Tom. S. Applegate; Monroe, Charles M, Rowe; Washtenaw, H. D. Platt. Permanent Organization—Hillsdale, John M. Osborne; Lenawee, Chas. R. Miller; Monroe, Col. I. R. Grosvenor; Washtenaw, Capt. E. P. Allen.

Hon. J. K. Bois, of Hudson, had withdrawn his name several days ago.

Hon. J. Webster Childs withdrew, as it was understood he would unless he had a solid delegation from this county.

Friends presented the names of Charles Rynd, of Adrian, Gen. Spaulding, Monroe, and Edwin Willits, Monroe.

The first ballot stood:

Hillsdale county, through its chairman, Mr. Coon, cast its 15 votes solid for Mr. Willits.

Lenawee county, through its chairman, the Hon. R. B. Robbins, cast 16 votes for Dr. Rynd and 5 for Mr. Willits.

Monroe county, through its chairman, Mr. George Peters, announced 10 votes for Gen. Spaulding and 2 for Mr. Willits.

W. B. Smith, for the Washtenaw delegation, announced that it cast 16 votes for the Hon. Edwin Willits.

The ballot was therefore announced as follows:

Edwin Willits	38
Dr. Charles Rynd	16
Gen. George Spaulding	10

The nomination was made unanimous. Speeches were made by Willits, Rynd, Spaulding, and Childs. The defeated candidates took their defeat with extra good nature.

GEN. SPAULDING SAID;

I am satisfied now—I was before—that defeat was certain to several candidates in this district. [Laughter.] I was reminded of it when I struck a passage that reads something like this, that "the scepter shall not depart from Judah nor the law giver from between his feet till Shiloh come." I am satisfied now that Shiloh has not come, and the scepter will remain with our friend Willits. [Applause and laughter.]

DR. RYND:

I do not believe that any nation on the face of the earth to-day produces any man who can feel on the whole more comfortable at his own funeral than an Irishman. [Long continued laughter and renewed cheering.] I come here, sir, to-day, to say that I fully concur in the action of this convention. [Applause.] Sixty-four men, good and true, have gathered together from various parts of the congressional district, and have named its next member of congress. [Applause.]

J. WEBSTER CHILDS:

I thank this convention, Mr. President, that they have again presented to the second congressional district a candidate who ought to and shall receive my most hearty and earnest support and labor to secure his election. [Applause.] Mr. President and fellow citizens, a thought occurs to me just at this time that it is of infinitely more importance—no matter what may have been our personal preferences—that on the great questions which now form national crises in our history, questions which are to be met during the next two years, and the decision of which is to decide the character of this government for a quarter of a century, perhaps, or more to come, that the votes shall be cast on the right side than by whom they shall be cast. [Applause.] We feel perfectly satisfied and sure, from the past, that so far as this district is concerned our vote will be cast all right. [Applause.] We have no misgivings as to that.

TIT-BITS OF THE STATE CONVENTION.

"Let us get into such a state of mind that within five minutes after the nomination shall be made everyone of us can see clearly that the hand of Providence was in it from the start."—Chairman Horr.

The above exhortation has been obeyed to the letter and the providential recognized in the nomination of Jerome.

The platform is lengthy as might be expected, twenty years after the organization of the party in the same place. It challenges a scrutiny of its record all this time. Its arraignment of the Democratic party is terribly true.

"During this same period, the Democratic party has been, as a party, abjectly pro-slavery, time-serving, unpatriotic, in part treasonable, reactionary and obstructive. It prostrated the nation's credit; it underminded the bulwarks of the constitution with the pernicious doctrine of state supremacy; it armed the rebellion; it encouraged treason; it discouraged the defence of the nation's life; opposed the draft; inaugurated bloody riots; declared for a truce with rebels in arms; pronounced the war a failure; defamed the greenback out of a share of its honest value; bitterly opposed freedom for the slave, civil rights for the freedman, and the franchise for the black citizen; denounced the constitutional amendments as "revolutionary and void;" denied freedom of speech, press and ballot in the south; by shot-guns, intimidation and tissue ballots gained control of both houses of congress; and attempted to revolutionize the government by refusing neccessary supplies, and by coercion of the executive, after having failed to steal the presidency by bribery.

It is now conspiring, under pretences of repentance false upon their face, to install "the lost cause" in the capital of the nation; to reorganize the supreme court; to undo all war legislation, and to make it easy to annul the constitutional amendments and bankrupt the treasury with rebel war claims and compensation for emancipated slaves.

The platform declares that the enforcement of the Constitutional Amendments can only be safely entrusted to friends. The following is the nub plank:

We demand for every citizen, rich and poor, white and black, north and south, the right and privilege of casting his ballot once and but once, at each election, and of having that ballot fairly counted and returned, without terror of shot-guns, frauds of tissue ballots, or cheats of cipher dispatches.

PRESENTATION SPEECHES.

J. C. Waterbury of Sanilac:

I have heard it said ever since I was a boy that there is a time once in a man's life if he will only improve that occasion, to make himself rich; and notwithstanding that some of my friends thought I had better not say anything on this occasion, I just wish to suggest to the convention now that there will be and opportunity for us all to make ourselves Rich. I mean by that to nominate the Hon. Mr. Rich of Lapeer for governon. [Laughter.]

Congressman Horr.

I come in early because I desire to keep him ahead to the end of the race. [laughter] In presenting the name of Mr. Jerome I present one that is not unknown to the people of Michigan. For six years he was an active and honored member of our state senate; for eight years he was president of our state military board and aided in conducting the business of that board so that the vast sums expended by the state of Michigan were collected back from the general government almost without the loss of a dollar. Mr. Jerome was a member of the commission that reorganized our state constitution. He has also been for the last four years and over one of the commissioners of Indian affairs for our general government. He has this peculiarity, and many of this convention know it, that whatever he undertakes to do he does it well. [Applause] The chairman of the committee on Indian affairs in the house of representatives informed me that Mr. Jerome gave more practical business suggestions upon that complicated question than any other man who came before that committee. He has thus had an experience of over four years on that Indian business, of working for the people for nothing [laughter and applause], and I suggest that that is right in the line of the work of the governor of Michigan. [Great laughter and applause].

Early work persisted in, won, as at always does. This grand eulogy was paid to Mr. Rich and the agricultural interests by Mr. Moore of Lapeer.

He is a quiet, modest man, a farmer forty years of age. He is not farming by proxy. [Applause.] He is not running a large business; but, gentlemen of the convention, he is, I think, worthily filling a place which is as honorably filled by a great majority of the inhabitants of this state as though their professions included matters of greater magnitude. He is a cultivated gentleman who has a good heart, a generous soul, a well disciplined mind, and the very genius of common sense. I make no appeal to prejudice here. It has no place in the convention; but we have been told by the gentleman from the eighth congressional district that they have 130,000 men up there. He told of the magnitude of their commerce. There are in this state a class of people who embrace in numbers one-half of the men who are within its borders They own two thirds of the real and personal property which pays its taxes; and yet, from the time when the lamented Kingsley S. Bingham was nominated for governor, a man of that class has never benn recognized by placing him at the head of the ticket. Now, gentlemen of the convention, what is it well to do? Is it not well in urging this man as possessing elements of strength to recognize the fact that these men are interested in the success of our ticket? Who are the farmers who are asking the nomination of this man? They are the men who found this peninsula of swamps and timber and have converted it into the most fertile lands upon the continent, if not in the world; they found it populated with wild beasts and wilder men; and they have dotted the state all over with homes inhabited by intelligent people. They are the men who, during the dark days of the republic, sent out from their boyhood homes men who had no higher aspirations than to fight and, if need be, die for the country which they loved; and they are the men who to-day must furnish the Republican majorities of this state. [Applause.]

CAPT. ALLEN.

Mr. Chairman, is the stage coach yet full?

The Chairman—There is always room for one more.

If you ask who our candidate is I will say that you may take all the virtues and all the honors and all the good things that have been said by all the speakers in favor of all the candidates and put them together and that is our candidate. [Cheers.] I could say more if it were necessary. [Renewed applause.]

The gentleman whose name is presented here is not a legislator. He is not a lawyer nor a doctor; he comes from the people and is of the people. He is one of that class so numerous in the great state of Michigan, who have made it what it is—the grandest State in all this nation. [Applause]. He has worked his own way from the most abject poverty to the position that he to-day occupies. [Applause.] There is no government on the face of the globe that will allow a man to spring from the substrata of poverty and insignificance, if we may use that expression in the sense that he was unknown—there is no nation in the world where a man can rise from the substrata and occupy such positions as leading men of this state and nation hold, except this one; and when one comes from these depths, and by honesty, integrity, and impartiality shows himself worthy of further trust, then it is an honor to present such a man for the suffrages of the people for any office. Applause.]

A man who has twice represented the state of Michigan in national conventions—the ones that chose for the second time U. S. Grant and for the first time R. B. Hayes. Not only this, but the state central committee of the Republican party of Michigan, knowing him as they have, and knowing how necessary it is to have an active business man to conduct the details of the campaign, have twice placed Mr. Beal in the position of chairman of the executive committee. [Applause.] In the campaign of 1878 we labored and fought with Mr. Beal acting as such chairman. But I correct myself. Mr. Beal, with that modesty which is a characteristic of the man—

[At the beginning of the last clause a sudden hush overspread the convention for an instant and then the entire body of men burst into a roar of laughter, which continued for some time. As soon as Mr. Allen could make his voice heard he continued:—Reporter].

Gentlemen of the convention, that is true modesty which knows what it can do and is not afraid to ask for it. [Applause and a voice "Good."] All else is false modesty. And now I say again that Mr. Beal, with the modesty that he has, which means that he knows what he can do and is not afraid to try and do it, his name being presented to this convention, has this day resigned his chairmanship of that executive committee. This is the man that we present to you; a man who stands four square to every wind that blows; a man who believes in his own ability and is not afraid to express his convictions; a man who will "do justly and fear not." [Great applause.]

We give the several ballots:

General Ward, in his speech paid an eloquent tribute to General Garfield. He said: "I remember well that on the 20th day of September, 1863, when I was borne on a stretcher from the field of Chickamauga, the last man on horseback that I saw on that field as we retired was General Garfield, who had staid there when the balance of Rosecrans' staff was gone."

There is no scratching the fact out that the Republicans are thoroughly organized, and will carry all elections between now and the Presidential race, and upon that occasion they will sweep everything before them. They are well heeled, and the Democrats are lagging in the rear, having as yet taken no positive action in reference to the coming campaign.—Chicago Times.

COUNTY, STATE, AND GENERAL NEWS.

From the Register.

Frank W. Capwell to Jas. M. Chidister, land on Congress street, Ypsilanti; $1,000.

Capt. Allen's obituary notice of Boss Beal appears in full in the last issue of the Courier. While not disposed to speak lightly upon so solemn a subject, we must confess that the Captain's laudation of the Boss reminds us of the closing prayer made by a pious old Scotch clergyman after listening to a sermon preached by a younger brother, "O, Lord! please prick our young brother and let the wind out of him, amen."

"What is the secret of Jerome's nomination?" inquired an anxious supporter of another candidate who had been taken by surprise by the result. The secret is no secret at all. Mr. Jerome is a man of good abilities, of high character, of unblemished reputation, who has heretofore performed excellent service for the State, and shown himself a man every way worthy of trust and confidence. His business abilities are excellent, and he is the sort of man whom a Republican convention, anxious for the best interests of the State, would be likely to to select for such an office. When such excellent reasons exist for the nomination it is hardly worth while to look for others.

From the Courier.

Rev. Richard H. Steel, of New Brunswick, New Jersey, who preached here a few weeks ago, has been tendered the Presbyterian pulpit of this city, at a salary of $1,500. It is understood he will accept the call.

The Ypsilanti carriage company has filed its annual report with County Clerk Clark. It reports a capital of $18,000; amount invested in real estate, $7,500; amount of personal estate, $6,776.15; amount of debts $912.66; amount of credits, 4,636.57.

Ex Gov. Ashley has been successful on his eastern journey, and has forwarded funds to pay up all debts and push forward the work on the extension of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad to completion. We understand that work has already commenced again, and that there will be no let up until the road is completed.

The trustees of St. Andrews' Episcopal church have concluded to erect a chapel and rectory the present season. The chapel will cost about $5,000, and will be built in the rear of the new church. The old church which has been used for a chapel for several years will be taken down to make way for a parsonage, to cost $3,200. The old brick in the Mundy house, on State street will be used in the parsonage.

The Ann Arbor reform club never was in a healthier or more prosperous condition than at the present time—all reports published and circulated to the contrary by its enemies, notwithstanding. The club is now the owner of upwards of $2,000 worth of property—its rooms neatly furnished—plenty of coal on hand to stand a long and severe winter. With upwards of $200 in cash now in its treasurer's hands; a very large and active membership of workers of three years standing; its numbers constantly increasing—twenty-six new names having been added last Sunday evening—and scarcely a week passing without adding some new ones to its rolls. All these things tell us of its formidable strength. J. B. S.

As is doubtless very well know to many of our readers our name figured somewhat conspicuously as a candidate for guberna torial honors at the recent state convention at Jackson, and although not successful, we feel proud of the several delegations from this congressional district, and those also from other portions of the State, who stood by us so gallantly as long as there was any hope, and to them for their persevering efforts in our behalf we return hearty and sincere thanks.

Numerous friends, also, from this city and county, and from other sections of the state, were upon the grounds using all honorable endeavors to effect the desired end, and to them also, we return thanks. We feel very grateful for these expressions of confidence and friendship, and they go far toward turning defeat into victory.

It is unnecessary for us to say that we heartily support the successful candidate, and that our earnest efforts in behalf of the entire state ticket can be fully relied upon.

Mary J. Smith Makes an Alleged Confession on Her Death Bed.

At 5 o'clock Saturday morning Mary J. Smith died at the Detroit House of Correction, where she was sent in December, 1876, having been committed with her sister, Julia Cargin, while Freeman Cargin and Norris Alexander were sent to the State Prison at Jackson. Mrs. Smith was sentenced for fifteen years, Mr. and Mrs. Cargin were sentenced for life, and Alexander got ten years. The above convictions were for the murder of Charles Smith, a thrifty farmer who lived near Chesaning, Saginaw Co., Mich., and who on the night of September 13, 1876, was murdered at his home. The convictions were procured on the testimony of Mrs. Smith and young Alexander, who turned State's evidence.

For several months Mrs. Smith has been suffering from a cancer in the stomach, and several times lately when fearful that she was at the point of death, she has indicated that she had a confession to make. Thursday afternoon she made the confession to Mrs. M. E. Clarkson, the matron, in which she claims that her State's evidence was wholly false, and that she never knew how her husband met hts death, but that she is positive Mr. and Mrs. Cargin—her sister and brother-in-law—and young Alexander knew nothing of the murder. She claims that she does not know that her husband was murdered. The reason she turned State's evidence was at the advice of a person who told her she was in a very bad fix, and the easiest way out of it was to lie out of it. The confession is not believed by the authorities.

The following is the answer of Gov. Croswell to the solicitations for a pardon:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
July 9, 1880.

Phillip Rolfe, Esq., Detroit, Mich:

MY DEAR SIR—The circumstances of the murder of the husband of Mary Jane Smith, in which she is convicted of having been a party, as represented to me are most inhuman and revolting. I am advised that parties, through an arrangement with her, came to the bed in which her husband, herself, and a little child were lying, and deliberately murdered the man whom she had pledged to cherish and love for life, she being privy to the crime and consenting thereto. With my present understanding of the case I feel that the sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment imposed upon her is light enough without any remission thereof by Executive pardon. Yours very truly,

CHARLES M. CROSWELL.

THE BENDER BUTCHERS.

A Thrilling Account of the Atrocities Done by the Family Just Captured.

Men Murdered in Cold Blood and Children Buried Alive.

The crimes for which a price has been set upon the heads of the Bender family are of a fiendish and revolting nature.

On the 9th of March, 1873, Dr. William H. York left Fort Scott on horseback for his house in Independence, Ks. He never arrived at home, and on the 28th of march the Lawrence Tribune gave a brief account of his disappearance and hinted at foul play. York was well known throughout the State—a brother of Col. A. M. York, whose expose of old Senator Pomeroy had that time made him famous. The story of York's disappearance was now in every mouth, and every effort was put forth to solve the mystery of his absence. Rivers were dragged, spots fit for an ambush were probed foot by foot, lonesome places were quested as a keen hound scents a trail that is cold—and still no traces of the lost man were discovered. Not a shadow of evidence rested anywhere to say that Dr. York had been murdered, not a sign anywhere told how he came to his death, if indeed death, had overtaken him unawares. He was traced to Cherryvale, in Labette Co., but no further. There all track and trace of him ceased.

About two miles south of Cherryvale, in a rude frame house standing in a lot of two acres in dimension, lived

THE BENDER FAMILY.

There were four of them—father, mother, son and daughter. The mother was a Spiritualist. She called herself a medium; the neighbors called her a she-devil. She had a way of boiling herbs and roots that were supposed to have charms and spells about them, and she dealt in incantations. She was repulsive in aspect—tall, angular and scrawny, with hard, steel-gray eyes, and thin, ragged gray hair straggling over temples. The rest of the family seem to have been totally under the influence of this ungainly creature. Her word with them was law. The Benders ostensibly kept a grocery; a sign to that effect was displayed in front of their rude dwelling. However, the only article they dealt in was cheap, native wine, which was served on the spot. There were two rooms in the house—one used as a kitchen and dining-room, and the other as a sleeping apartment.

While the excitement over the mysterious disappearance of Dr. York was at its hight, a party of Cherryvale citizens casually dropped in at the Bender mansion and as casually inquired if they had at any time during the past six weeks seen anything of York.—The answer was in the negative, and the subject was dropped. The visit and the questioning of the Cherryvale party had a strange effect upon the Benders. They

SUDDENLY DISAPPEARED

From their former home, nor were they seen again till their apprehension at Fremont, Neb., was accomplished last week.

A man riding into Cherryvale from the country one day was impressed by the deserted appearance of the Bender place. He entered the yard. In the stable he found a dead calf, the miserable creature's emaciated carcass gave every sign of having starved to death. The man walked up to the house, opened the door and looked in. Not an article of household furniture had been removed, but the dust lay heavy on everything. It was very supicious. The man proceeded to Cherryvale and told his story. A. M. York, the brother of the missing man was there. To his suspicious and eager mind the sudden and strange flight of the Bender family was a revelation. He had found the first clue to his lost brother. He divulged his suspicions and a band of men accompained him to the Bender farm. The front room of the house was carefully searched, every crack and crevice being minutely looked into subjected to the application of rods and levers to see if the flooring was either hollow or loose. Nothing came of it. No blood spots appeared. The floor was solid. The walls were solid. Next the party searched the back room. The beds were removed. In their flight the Benders had

A slight depression was noticed in the door, which, upon close examination, revealed a trap-door. This was immediately lifted up and in the gloom a pit outlined itself forbidding, cavernous, unknown. Lights were procured and some of the men descended. They found themselves in an abyss shaped like a well, six feet deep and five feet in diameter. Here and there damp places could be seen, as if water had come up from the bottom or been poured down from above. They groped around over these splotches and held a handful to the light. The ooze smeared itself over their palms and dribbled through their fingers. It was blood, thick, fœtid, clammy, sticking blood!

Every awful suspicion was now realized. The murderers had fled, leaving behind damning evidences of their hideous guilt. But where were the bodies of their victims? For an hour the party of excited people traversed the lonely garden in the rear of that human slaughter pen, prodding the earth with a long iron rod. All at once the iron seemed to strike fleshy matter. In a moment's time a dozen eager spades had resurrected from its shallow grave the putrid carcass of a human being. The body had been buried face down. They turned it over to the sunlight. A cry of terror went up from the crowd.

IT WAS YORK'S CORPSE.

Although far advanced in the stage of decomposition, the features were plainly recognizable. How the murderous deed had been done was speedily and easily learned. A terrible blow on the back of the head had crushed the skull down and in upon the brain and the throat had been cut from ear to ear.

The work of discovery went on. One after another were laid bare the graves of ten murdered people. Most of the bodies were identified and the roster of recognized victims were as follows: W. H. York, George W. Longcar and daughter, L. G. Brown, W. F. McCrotty, Henry F. McKenzie, Peter Boyle and John Bogert. From evidences at hand it appeared that the modus operandi at the killing of a victim was as follows: Attracted to the Bender mansion by the conspicously displayed grocery sign, a stranger was inveigled into the death trap and invited to a glass of wine or something to eat. As he sat at the table in the back room one of his treacherous hosts smote him with a hammer, crushing in his skull and killing him instantly. But to insure death his thoat is ripped from ear to ear and he was hurriedly dropped through the trap door to the

BLODY CAVERN BENEATH.

In the dead of the night the body was removed to the garden and buried.

Here it was that the bodies of George W. Longcar and his infant daughter were exhumed. Longcar was one of Dr. York's neighbors, and had started for Iowa with a view to locating permanently. Casually stopping at the Bender place, he was brutally murdered. His skull was mashed to a jelly, his throat cut and his body mutilated. His little child had evidently been tossed into the grave, upon the mangled corpse, and buried alive.

The discovery of the inhuman butcheries perpetrated by the Bender family was made seven years ago. For seven years diligent search for the bloody murderers has been pursued in every land upon the face of the earth. Up to four days ago the search was unavailing. But

JUSTICE, THROUGH TARDY, IS SURE,

And once in the toils of a grossly outraged law, the Benders will speedily suffer the penalty of their fiendish atrocities. The gallows upon which they die should be built so high that all the world might see and enjoy the death throes of the most inhuman wretches civilization has been cursed with since the days of Sawney Bean and his incestuous family of Cannibals.—Kansas City Times.

DR. TANNER alive and kicking at the end of the forty days. The crowd cheered him enthusiasticly. About 1,000 persons were in the hall, and an immense number of people on the siedwalk. The doctor drank a glass of Milk, and called for a Georgia watermelon. This he tapped, dug his hand into it, and ate heartily. When remonstrated with he asked to be let alone, saying "No, my Lord, I am running this now." When he placed the glass of milk to his mouth he remarked, "Gentlemen, you don't believe that's good." The signal for the expiration of the fast was a whistle from a factory in the vicinity. When it blew Tanner had a peach in his hand, but before he could put it to his mouth, someboby snatched it away. In response to the plaudits of the assemblage, Tanner, who was sitting on a chair placed on a table, waved his handkercheif over his head. At a quarter past 12, Tanner got down from the table and left the hall in a coach in charge of Dr. Gunn, who took him to his own residence where he will receive careful treatment. Dr. Tanner's weight at the end of the fast, was 121½ pounds, Loss, 46 lbs. in forty days.

Just before noon the temperature of the doctor was 99, pulse 92, respiration 17. On leaving the hall the doctor walked unassisted down stairs, with a slice of melon in his hand. He received an ovation from the crowd in the streets, shops and windows and exhibited much gratification at his hearty reception. Dr. Hammond says:

Dr. Tanner gives these lessons:

1. He has not succeded in showing that his organism is differently constituted from any other, for he has suffered as much as others would have suffered under like diprivations.

2. That the alleged instances of fasting a month or more without symptoms of inanition, are fraudulent, or otherwise deceptive. This is the most important result, probably, of the trial.

3. He has shown the inability of the human race to go for any considerable period without water, confirming therefore, our previous knowledge on the subject.

Live Long and be Happy.

Why should not every one live out thir full allotted time, enjoy good health and be happy? Surely there is no good reason, and many will allow impure blood, weakness of the kidneys, imperfect digestion and urinary troubles to undermine and break down their general health, and carry them to a premature grave some seek relief in mineral poisons, in pill form, etc., others resort to extensively advertised alcoholic beverages and fermented liquors, only to feel themselves for a time somewhat better, but after a while, much worse. Now why should this be so? It is well known by the intelligent portion of our community that Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla will surely remove all these disorders. This remedy is the wonderful discovery of an eminent French physician, and has proven in thousands of instances to be the best vegetable blood purifier known to medical men. It never fails to effectually cure Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, weakness of the kidneys, all nervous disorders and debility, and all urinary and digestive troubles. It makes the old feel full of youthful vigor, and the young energetic and gay, restoring perfect manhood and womanhood, especially when the disease has a tendency to weaken the mind, body, and nervous system. Do not despair. A single bottle will convince you of its great merit as a health renewer for it begins at once to give new life and new vigor to both body and mind, never failing to remove all symptons of any and every disease that can be cured by cleansing, renovating, purifying and strengthening the human system, driving out, as by magic, the many ills that flesh and blood is heir to, and building up new health, new vigor, and new life. Large quart bottle, $1.00 Have your druggist get this excellent preparation for you—take no other. 845-1yr.

A WALK IN THE GARDEN.

The day has been fitful with showers
And sometimes a sunshiny gleam,
And I with the past and the present
Have wrestled like one in a dream.

The sight of a myrtle blossom,
Brings thoughts of my Mother's grave,
As yet no grass is springing,
No flowers their censors wave

Above it; but here in the garden,
I think of the flowers she loved,
Her desolate life was so lonely,
Not often beyond it she roved.

She said of the pale wild violet,
It always for her had charms,
And if of the titled gentry,
She'd have in her coat of arms.

The swelling buds of the lilac
And flowering almond bush,
The delicate sprigs of sweetbrier,
With bunches of faint pink flush;

The plain and the striped tulip,
The snowball knotted and knarled,
The bluebells and tiger-lilly,
The fringe tree feathered and curled;

The red and the pink peony,
The common but fragrant blush rose,
With its sisters in white and yellow,
The plentiful larkspur blows;

Yes, even the old cornlillies
And runaway raspberry vine,
The mountain ash and sage roots.
They all are treasures of mine.

The jonquil with honey laden,
The Star of Bethlehem,
Have all been touched with a blessing,
For I heard her speak of them.

Our old and neglected garden,
Tells many a tale to me,
Of the many times we have wandered,
And talked of each bush and tree.

As one after one has yielded
To the hand of age or decay,
It seemed every tie was breaking,
We would gladly go away.

The cedar tree, close to the kitchen,
We guarded, for only a boy
Had brought it with pride from the hillside,
And Albert was MOTHER'S joy.

The peaches and plums and quinces,
The cherries and currants, her care
Had gathered to garnish our garden,
And vary our daily fare.

One cherry tree near by her window,
Tom planted the day he was wed,
But ere of its fruit he had tasted,
We looked on the face of our dead.

Ah! where is the honeysuckle
She tended and nourished so long,
The humming-bird yearly returning,—
The Robin and Phebe-bird's song?

The well with its old fashioned windlass,
Her hands brought so oft to the brink,
The water, to furnish, like Jacob,
Her children and cattle with drink.

One babe in its innocent beauty
God sent, but one evening in May,
He whispered "Come, follow me, Jessie!"
He gave and he took her away.

The house Henry painted and always
Did Mother depend upon him,
She loved all her boys, but no other
To her has more generous been.

The healing green stalks of sweetclover
She simmered, for cut or a bruise.
And always in someway or other,
She saved everything for our use.

The old apple trees are diminished,
How stuffed were our pockets for school!
We munched while we studied our lessons,
Regardless of teacher or rule.

How often we played "anti over,"
"Hi-spy" with the well for the "by,"
And dared from his den the red lion,
Those days make me both laugh and cry.

The fences are broken and leaning,
And hammer and nails for the barns
Are wanted, but who is now watching
To save from distruction and harm?

The crab-apple's pure white blossoms
Burst forth, out of season, to bloom
In the beautiful month of October,
The last ever she passed through the gloom

Her birthday she gathered the clusters,
So lovely, so dainty and fair,
And wondered if by the next spring-time,
Their fragrance again they would share.

The snows of a single winter
Have added a tender grace,
To the spot where till resurrection,
Her dust finds a resting place.

There is not a token needed
To point as a monitor,
When the Lord shall call his people,
For he will remember her.

From the clouds he'll descend in glory,
And "the dead in Christ shall be
The first" to answer the summons
Of the One in the Trinity.

No longer with toil stained garments,
Or with weary hands and feet,
Or heart that is heavy laden,
Will she the Master greet.

But with robes the sun outshining,
Right up by the radiant throne,
She will chant her "Hallelujahs,"
And will cast her golden crown.

Her eyes will behold "not a stranger,"
But Jesus, and face to face,
For long, long ago, in his Kingdom,
He went to prepare her a place.

His voice she will gladly welcome,
And say, "Here am I, to Thee
I come, Lord, with joy and bringing
The children Thou gavest me."

We weep, but our tears are not bitter,
For out from this thralldom of sin,
God lifted our world weary Mother,
To rest, happy Zion, within.

The Lamb is the light of the City,
No sorrow or pain can there be;
Our Mother, forever, in glory,
Will reign, blessed Jesus, with Thee.

THE BENDER FAMILY.

From the Omaha Herald.

"Suppose you tell this man your whole story and may be he can help you some," suggested the artful Kopplekom, and with that I produced my note book, which I had not dared to do before, for fear of exciting Bender's suspicions and closing his mouth; a chair was placed for me near the cross-barred side of the cell, and the

OLD MAN TOLD HIS STORY

as follows:

"I was born in the Mohawk valley in York State. My father moved to Genesee Flats, six miles from Mt. Morris. I worked on the old Woodworth farm until I was 17 years old and then come to Illinois, I am 70 years old now. I have been in Illinois ever since until I went off down to my woman's folks, in Missouri."

"What year was that?"

"Well, durned if I know; it ain't very long ago, though. Her folks lived somewheres down near the Arkansas line. Her father and mother died there and she went down to get her part of the estate, but she can't get it until her sister comes of age. There was seven children altogether, and every one is to get just $1,700."

"From there where did you go?"

"We went to Fort Scott, then to Leavenworth, and then we went amongst the Indians."

"What did you do there?"

"I was going to get some land, but I lost my papers."

"What papers?"

"The papers I had from the war. I was into the war in the 131st Illinois."

"Who was your colonel?"

"Charley Fox. I was under Sherman and under McClellan, and I was under another feller, but I forget his name. After the war closed I went to Jacksonville and Springfield, Illinois. I was married in Springfield to a woman whose first name was Nancy Lance, but she married a man named Ellison. She had three children, but two of them died before I married her, and the other has died since. I had four children before that."

"Are you a German?"

"No, I ain't; I know there's been talk about my being a German, but my father was a Scotchman and my mother was a New York Dutch woman."

"How did you happen to be at Bender's house at the time of these murders; I believe you have admitted you were there?"

"Yes, I admit I was there, but it was just an accident. I was coming up from Missouri to see some folks I had in Howard county, Nebraska, and to look for land.

I NEVER KNOWED THEM BENDERS

in God's world before, but I just happened to stop there 'cause I was sick. If I had knowed what kind of people they was I would have laid out doors and died before I'd a gone in their house I always mind my own business and I just thought they were common farmers."

"But there was no land broke about their house, I understand."

For a moment the old man hesitated, and then replied. "Well, I didn't see any, but it was night when we got there, and I was sick."

"What convinced you the Benders were not all right?"

"Well, I heard some noises that didn't suit me and that made me want to go."

"What did you hear?"

"Well, I heard the noise down below while they was killing 'em. I tell you, Kate is a regular devil; she blames it on me and my old woman, but she done it herself. The people would sit down to eat, and they had a kind of a curtain they'd let down; they'd hit 'em on the head, and open the trap and drop 'em down the hole."

"Were you in that room?"

"No, I was in another room. It was a long house, but I can't tell how many rooms there was. Oh! I wish they'd let my old woman come back; I can't get along without my old woman. They say she's to be here about 5 o'clock to day. I tell you I feel awful; I never was shut up before."

"I thought you said you were arrested in Iowa once?"

"I was, that's so, but they didn't lock me up; they just let me stay at the tavern. But I intend to make this county pay for this. I've been locked up here about ten or twelve days now."

"What do yoa think would be the right figure to charge the commissioners as damages!"

"IF THEY'LL PAY ME $1,700,

I'll let them off; but they ve got to buy me and the old woman railroad tickets besides; you see we haven't got a cent. If we hadn't been locked up we'd a been in Jacksonville, Illinois, by this time, where I'd got plenty of work. If I'd a jined the masons they'd a got me out before this; I wanted to jine 'em several years ago, but somehow I forgot it and now you see where I am. They had no right to bother us this way; we was just a walking along the public road not molesting nobody. I want to git out of here; I'm too cold; these pants I've got on ain't lined, and my shirt's too thin for such weather as we have these nights. I always wear a woolen over-shirt in cold weather. It makes me sick to be in here; I can't get up when I lay down without catching hold of something. That devilish Kate done it; I never done such a thing in my life; I was there; but I couldn't help that."

"How does il happen that Kate and John Bender have been traveling with you ever since?"

"Why, we overtook 'em. They said they were a going to cross the Missouri river at Omaha; they said they was a going to New York state, and they was pinted that way the last I saw of 'em. They said they was out of money, and I know Kate sold a ring for two dollars."

"How much money did you have when you were arrested?"

"I didn't have a cent."

"How did you live?"

"Well, when we was hungry we would stop at a neighbor's house along the road and ask for somthing to eat; the neighbors along the road was mighty good and gave us all we wanted to eat. Sometimes we would stop and work a little—take in washing and such things."

"How much money did the Benders get from the people they killed j"

"I couldn't tell you, but they say since they was gone they found a lot of money."

"Buried in the ground?"

"Of course it was; I don't suppose they'd keep it in the house. Oh! Oh! I can t live this way. I was

KICKED OUT OF A STABLE

By a horse and ruptured on both sides; I want this county to buy me a truss—he was a nice horse, too, and I didn't think he would kick—a nice young horse."

"How long have you been traveling with the Benders?"

"I haven't been traueling with 'em hardly any; I didn't have nothing to do with 'em."

"Where did you first see them!"

"Way up toward the Niobrara. I went up there to see if I couldn't git a homestead, but I'd lost my soldier papers."

"But any one can take a homestead."

"Yes, but a citizen can git only 80 acres, while a soldier gits 160."

"But as you couldn't take 160 acres, why didn't you take an 80?"

"Well, I wanted all that belonged to me; oh dear; oh dear; I must go and lay down;" and with that the interview terminated.

THE WIFE'S STORY

Was next obtained. She now talks very freely, under the impression that a full confession on her part will be of service to her in the future. When first oonfined, the two prisoners occupied adjoining cells, but were separated about a week ago, the wife being put in a room in the second story of the jail building, and the old man informed that she had been taken to Kansas temporarily. Since she has talked so freely she expresses a fear of her husband and does not wish to occupy the same cell with him.

"How old are you?" was the first query put to Mrs. Bender.

"I'll be 45 next March."

"You seem to be a strong, hearty woman?"

"Yes, I am. I am six feet tall, and last spring I weighed 235 pounds; I think I'll go 200 now."

"Suppose you tell me the whole story about this Kansas business; I don't think it will hurt you any now."

"No, I know it won't. Well, we lived in Kansas ever since the last war; my old man took up a soldier's homestead near where they done the murdering. John and Kate come out afterwards, and the old man was sick there and I was waiting on him. When people would come to the house my husband and John and Kate would kill them—you know I can't help what my husband done. I don't know how many they killed and put in the cellar; I wanted to come away but my husband would not."

"How much time did this cover?"

"Well, let me see—how long is it since the last war ended?"

"About fifteen years."

"Then it is about fifteen years, I think."

"What is about fifteen years?"

"Since this murdering commenced."

"Was it all done in Kansas?"

"Yes, sir; we was married in Springfield, Illinois, right after the war closed and went to Kansas right away. We was married in March, but I don't know what year it was; I'm no schollard."

"YOUR HUSBAND'S NAME IS JOHN BENDER?"

"Yes, sir; his name was McGregor when I married him, but he took the name of Bender since."

"And he is the man they have been looking for for seven years?"

"Yes, sir, he is."

"Have young John and Kate been with you all the time?"

"Yes, sir, we have all been together."

"Where have you been during the past seven years?"

"Traveling around in part of Kansas, in Nebraska, in the Indian Territory, Dakota, the Black Hills, and on the Niobrara; he wanted to take land on the Niobrara, but it was all taken up."

"How have you supported yourselves?"

"Sometimes we would get work at washing, and such like as that. We had a team, but John and Kate took that. My husband and me used to walk; we used to make 26 miles a day afoot. We would camp out and sleep in the wagon and in houses along the road."

"You have been on the go in this way for seven years?"

"Yes, sir, all the time."

"How much money did you get from the people who were killed?"

"I don't know how much; they got a good deal."

"What was done with it?"

"I don't know what Kate done with it; we didn't get any of it."

"Over how much time

DID THIS KILLING

In Labette county, Kansas, extend?"

"I think it was three months from the first."

"Who was the first?"

"Dr. York. I don't know how many was killed in the cellar, but the garden was full of them. They called it a garden, but it was a kind of a peach orchard in front of the house; they plowed it all up smooth to hide the graves; the graves were all dug in the night."

"I don't see how you, a woman who has had children of her own, could endure hearing the screams of those two poor little children who were buried alive?"

At this, tears cams to the eyes of the woman; she put her face in her hands and for a moment made no reply, but finally said that she wanted to get away and not see such things, but could not; that it made her heart ache to hear the screaming and know that another murder was being perpetrated.

ANOTHER HORRIBLE CRIME

Has evidently been committed by the two younger members of this cold-blooded, brutal quartette.

"How old are John and Kate?" I asked.

"John is 40 and Kate is 35."

"They are full brother and sister?"

"Yes, sir."

"Has Kate ever been married?"

"No, sir."

"Whose children are those she has with her?"

"They are her'n. I heard 'em say she has four."

"But you know as well as anybody; how many did she have when you lived in Kansas?"

"She didn't have any."

"But it's only a short time since you saw her; how many did she have then?"

"She only had two."

"Whose children are those?"

The old woman hesitated and then replied, "Kate and John have been living together."

"As man and wife?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you mean that her own brother is the father of her children?"

"Yes, I guess he is."

"How many children are there, and how old are they?"

"She has four children; one is eight years old, the next is seven, the next is five and the youngest three, I think."

"They have all been born while you were wandering around the country?"

"Yes, sir.".

"It is reported that a young woman is traveling with them; is that true?"

"No; there ain't nobody but them and the children."

COMPUNCTIONS OF CONSCIENCE.

"Has your husband, young John, or Kate, ever expressed any regret for their dreadful crimes?"

"No, sir; I never heard 'em say a word about it, one way or the other."

"How much money did you have at the time you were arrested?"

"We didn't have nary cent; we hadn't had no money for four months."

"How long have you staid in one place since leaving Kansaa?"

"Sometimes we would stop two or three days at a farm house, but that is all."

"Can you read?"

"No, sir; neither can my husband; I think John and Kate can."

"Why didn't you and the old man stay with John and Kate, instead of starting across the country afoot?"

"Well, he said he wouldn't ride any further—that he would foot it a spell. He wanted to cross the Missouri at Omaha, and John and Kate was to cross at Plattsmouth. We was all going to Jacksonville, Illinois, to live there."

The Tanner epistolary is one of the most absurd features of this performance. Not to speak of the many postal cards with which in the early part of his fast George Francis Train inundated him every day, his mail is largely made up of incoherent or twaddling stuff from all sorts of people. All over the country imitators are springing up. He received offers of marriage from silly women—one of them saying that she has been fasting for a husband for fifteen years. Boarding house-keepers sent sarcastic comments, and undertakers their cards. One man wrote that he was applying the Tanner process to some kittens, which died under the operation. Another lunatic is alarmed at the diminishing of the doctor's hight and warns him that if he don't take care the top and bottom of his stomach will meet, and then what will happen?" The old proverb, "One fool makes many," has scarcely ever been so clearly demostrated as in Tanner's case.

Gen. Weaver's denunciation of bull dozing, in the very den of the Southern lion, won for him the great respect of all who love free elections and an honest count.

WADE HAMPTON.

His Appeal to the Rebel Memories of Virginians.

"These are the Same Principles for which Lee and Jackson Fought."

From the Staunton Valley Virginian, July 29.

The largest political meeting ever held in Stanton was that of Monday last. Capt. John H. Crawford was called to the chair, and introduced Senator Wade Hamptom of South Carolina. Gen. Hamptom is a man of fine physique and splendid appearance, and as he stepped forward to the stage round after round of applause greeted him. After alluding to the fact that his ancestry were Virginians, and had fought side by side with the sons of the old state, and to his own services during the late war, he said: "So it is that I am bound to you by bonds which death alone can sever. So it is that I, like so many of the veterans of the Confederacy, am jealous of the honor and proud of the glorious heritage bequethed to her by her Lee and her Stonewall Jackson.

"What is Virginia's duty now? You hardly realize, my friends, how much depends on the action of your state. With a united South casting 138 electoral votes, we need only New York and Indiana, and I believe we shall have them.

"If we elect the Democratic nominees the Republican party will go to pieces like a rope of sand. Their mission is ended, if they ever had a mission.

Gov. Vance will confirm my words that we can carry the south if you will only carry Virginia. He has come like me, to appeal to you not to forsake us in the hour of need. CONSIDER WHAT LEE AND JACKSON WOULD DO WERE THEY ALIVE. THESE ARE THE SAME PRINCIPLES FOR WHICH THEY FOUGHT FOR FOUR YEARS. REMEMBER THE MEN WHO POURED FORTH THEIR LIFE BLOOD ON VIRGINIAN'S SOIL. AND DO NOT ABANDON THEM NOW. REMEMBER THAT UPON YOUR VOTE DEPENDS THE SUCCESS OF THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET."

SOMEBODY'S CHILD.

Somebody's child is dying—dying with the flush of hope on his young face and an indescribable yearning to live and take an honored place in the world beside the companions of his youth. And somebody's mother is thinking of the time when that dear face will be hidden where no ray of hope can brighten it—when her heart and home will be left desolate—because there was no cure for consumption. Reader, if the child be your neighbor's, take this comforting word to the mother's heart before it is too late. Tell her that consumption is curable, that men are living to-day, aged, robust men, whom the physicians pronounced incurable at the age of twenty-five, because one lung had been almost destroyed by the disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a most efficient alterative for separating the scrofulous matter from the blood and lungs, and imparting strength to the system. It has cured hundreds of consumptives.

Scrofulous swellings, carbuncles and boils, blotches, pimples and eruptions, enlarged glands, internal soreness, torpid liver, and general clogged condition of the system, all yield in due time to natures's sovereign remedy—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. DR. R. V. PIERCE:

DEAR SIR—Having suffered many weary months from liver complaint without relief, I was last summer induced to try your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets. At the time I was scarcely able to walk. Owing to their effect I commenced to improve rapidly and am now as well and strong as ever. I thank you from the depths of my heart for the good they have done me and wish you all success. INTEVSE SUFFERING FROM KIENEYS CURED.

MONTGOMERY CENTER, VT., FEB. 25th, 1880.

GENTLEMEN—I feel it a duty and a pleasure not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and testify after eight years intense suffering, what your Kidney-Wort has done for me. For the past year have been taking different remedies for Kidney Disease, but derived no benefit. Haye had trouble with my Kidneys for eight years very bad by spells, and for several months, able to do but very little work, at times passing blood from the bladder, and experienced a prickly sensation all over. I was fearful of paralysis, and was dizzy, afraid to stoop over from fear of falling. At last in January commenced taking your Kidney-Wort and found almost immediate relief. One box made a new man of me. I feel almost as well as ever in my life, and I sincerely believe it will restore to health all who may be similarly afflicted.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. FROM

REV. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Alban's District.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan, 20th, 1880.

DR. J. B. KENDALL & CO., Gents: My experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks, when he became better but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring bone was forming. I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found.

Resdectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

Office U. S. Marshall, Western Dist. of Mich.
Kalamazoo, Apail 15th, 1879.

I received the two bottles of your spavin cure forwarded by express in January last. I am happy to state that it performed all your advertisement called for. In three weeks after I commenced using it the spavin was entirely removed and a valuable horse restored to usefulness.

Verry truly yours, JOHN PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, and yet it is penetrating, and powerful to reach any deep seated pain, or to remove any bony growth or any other enlargement if used for several days, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a linament is used on man or beast. It is known to be the best linament for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.
